PREFACE

On the publication of the final Roll of Service of members of the University in the recent War it is desirable to explain briefly the lines on which it has been prepared.

The names are included of past and present members of the University, whether teachers, students, or officials,[1] who served with the British Army, Navy, or Air Forces or with the armed Forces of the Overseas Dominions of the Empire or with our Allies. Women, too, are included who served with Queen Mary's Auxiliary Corps or with similar organisations. It was decided to include those who entered the University for the first time after demobilisation, provided their entry took place not later than April 1920, and also those whose connection with the University consisted only in the membership of the University Contingent of the Officers' Training Corps, provided they had been connected with that body for at least one month during the War, such members being denoted by an asterisk.

We have not included the names of civilian workers or of Red Cross workers or members of Ambulance Units except in the case of those who have given their lives in the performance of their duties.

It will be noted that only degrees and diplomas of the Manchester University have been recorded.

Though it is hoped that nearly all important facts have been supplied, it is regretted that it has been impossible to collect in every case the full particulars required, and the editors must ask indulgence for any omissions or errors.

The completion of the Record has involved much labour, and it is impossible to thank every one, whether members of the University or their relatives or friends, for the valuable information and advice which they have freely given, but we must express our special obligations to Captain Sinnatt of the Officers' Training Corps for the generous way in which he has placed at our disposal the extensive materials which he had compiled regarding the members of the University. Without these documents no satisfactory record could have been produced. We also owe much to his valuable advice at every stage of the work. We must also express our thanks for ungrudging assistance and information to the successive Editors.

[1] Names of members of the University who studied at University College, Liverpool, and the Yorkshire College, Leeds, in the time of the Federal Constitution are omitted as they will appear more appropriately in the War Rolls of the Universities of Liverpool and Leeds.

It has been the wish of the University in issuing this volume to erect a Memorial, however inadequate, to the willing sacrifice of her sons, and in particular of those who fell on the battlefields of three Continents.

To future generations of our students the example of those who went out from the University and offered their lives for their country will always be an inspiration. Their own lives will doubtless be set in happier circumstances, but with the substitution of social service for military service the nation's call will be as urgent, and their own opportunities will be as great, as in the years of the War. If they can, with the memory of their predecessors before them, be animated by the same devotion and self-sacrifice, the legacy of the Great War to their generation will not be wholly one of increased difficulties, but it will be also the legacy of a spirit able to vanquish those difficulties. Heroism is no monopoly of war ; there are sacrifices as great as that of life, hardships equal to those of battle ; and upon the new spirit of service and the new army of those pledged to devote their lives to the welfare of their fellow-creatures will depend the progress of humanity in the near future.

The present crisis will require the same qualities and the same courage which belonged to our lost comrades : the same disregard for personal advantage, the same buoyant and undismayed spirit.

The legacy that they have left to us is the duty to follow in their footsteps, and it is for us to take up our call to arms with their courage, and to fight our battles with their fortitude. Thinking of each one of them we shall say :

> Nothing is here for tears, no contempt,
> Dispraise, or blame ; nothing but well and fair
> And what may quiet us in a death so noble.
> There will I build him
> A monument, and plant it round with shade
> Of laurel ever green, and branching palm,
> With all his trophies hung, and acts enroll'd
> In copious legend or sweet lyric song.
> Thither shall all the valiant youth resort,
> And from his memory inflame their breasts
> To matchless valour, and adventures high.

HENRY A. MIERS,

Vice-Chancellor.
